The indictment unsealed Friday indicates that the victims "suffered physical and emotional injuries" from the shooting that left the 58 victims dead and hundreds more injured. Law enforcement officers responded to the scene of the shooting on Oct. 1, 2017, just after 2 a.m., when Stephen Paddock opened fire on a crowd of concertgoers at the Route 91 Harvest festival. There were more than 23,000 people attending the festival, where country superstar Jason Aldean was performing. Between 2:05 a.m. and 9:19 a.m., Paddock sprayed the concertgoers with bullets from his 32nd floor hotel room at the Mandalay Bay resort and casino, killing 58 people and wounding nearly 545 others. The indictment charges the suspect, who was found dead from a self-inflicted gunshot wound, with one count of murder and one count of murder for the purpose of avoiding prosecution. His death in April is considered a suicide. No motive has been established for why the suspect carried out the mass shooting. Las Vegas police say Paddock fired from his hotel room window, killing dozens of people in the crowd, before killing himself. Those who were attending the country music festival said they were there to see Aldean, but were not even in the same part of the venue where the shooting occurred. The indictment is a criminal document and does not contain charges. It is standard procedure when a case is closed to file an indictment so that the charges can be unsealed at a later time.Q: Did any of the older powers (including Soviet Communism) try to maintain some kind of independent foreign policy?
